A CONVERSATION AMONG SURVIVORS:
A rare opportunity to hear Holocaust survivors share their experiences

In May 2014, the Suffolk Center on the Holocaust, Diversity & Human Understanding, Inc. introduced to each other several Holocaust survivors and brought them together for a conversation about their diverse experiences as victims of the Nazi effort to exterminate the Jewish people. Had it not been for the Holocaust, the stories of their lives would have been entirely different.

On November 4, three of these survivors will meet again for a continuing dialogue on their experiences and on how the Holocaust shaped their lives. It will be held at the Emma Clark Library in Setauket at 7 pm. The public is invited but seating is limited and registration is required by contacting the Library at 631.941.4080

The participants will be:

Werner Reich, now of Smithtown, was born in Germany, moved to Yugoslavia, and was sent to Terezin Czechoslovakia, the Auschwitz-Birkenau death camp, and Mauthausen.

Hannah Robinson, now of Sound Beach, was born in Germany, and at nine years old her parents sent her with her brother to England, on the Kindertransport.

Ruth Minsky Sender, now of East Setauket, was born in Poland, was forced to live in the Lodz Ghetto, the Auschwitz-Birkenau death camp, the Mittelsteine and Grafenort work camps, and a displaced persons camp in Germany.

Event Date: November 4, 2014; 7 pm – 8:30 pm

Location: Emma Clark Library, Setauket, NY

Speakers: Werner Reich
Hannah Robinson
Ruth Minsky Sender
